Experience:

Web Design / Development:

June 2008 - August 2009: Freelance website design with a university friend was the main source of income. This small business opportunity provided industry experience dealing with clients and working between specified deadlines.

September 2009: Sellerbyte needed website designs for their own corporate and business websites. This was only casual work for a short period. Sellerbyte ended due to the recession. Manacomm, the parent company, shortly followed.

December 2009: After the fallout of Sellerbyte, a few members of the team stayed together, forming a small business known as Cirqular. This was successful and after an interview with a marketing expert the name was recently changed to Optomo. This is current employment.

Other Experience:

- Operating and repairing many applications and devices.
- Freelance computer builder/repairer.
- Freelance web design and development.
- Freelance VHS to DVD conversions.
- Completed an 18day/6wk internship through the University with VMP (Video Media Pro), a multimedia house based in South Brisbane.
